LOGAN, UTAH.

COMMENTS FROM THE EDITORS

We as co-editors of the first two issues of THE PIONEER wish to thank those members who have contributed material to make them possible. Also, we want to thank those who gave so unselfishly of their time in helping us put the quarterlies together, especially Mrs. Mary Jamison and Mrs. Zona Smith.

We were sorry to lose Mrs. Zona Smith as our secretary due to health problems. However, we are happy to welcome Mrs. Judy Sweets into our group of officers for the remainder of our fiscal year.

Mrs. Mary Jamison is certainly to be commended for the outstanding job she has done as librarian during this first full year of our existence.

To Mr. Nelson Lance Reppert we can only say "Thank you for a job well done." It hasn't been an easy undertaking, being the first president of the society. We both want to wish you well as you move from the presidency to the new job of editor for the coming year.

As the two remaining officers of the first year of our societies existence we have served as vice-president and treasurer and also took on the roll this past few months as co-editors of our quarterly. Due to health problems of either ourselves or members of our family we have chosen not to hold an office during the up coming year.

We want to thank our membership as a whole for their support and for their outstanding attendance at our monthly meetings. For a small society we have had exceptionally large turn-outs for our meetings. For this we are very proud.

During this past year we have acquired several books and have a good start on the building up of a very good collection of genealogical material.

Let's all turn out for the workshop on May 26th at the 4-H Fairground; that will be conducted by Everton Publishers of Logan, Utah. The hours are 9 a. m. to 12 noon and 2 p. m. to 5 p. m. The cost of the workshop is $6.00 and the price of the buffet luncheon is $1.75.

We would like to remind all of our members to please turn in their surnames and localities to Mrs. Jamison for our files. Remember too, that the information taken from our 5 generation ancestor charts is what makes up the page "Our Ancestors" in the quarterly. Only a few have returned those charts. Lets get them in and keep this page in our quarterlies. We are sure Mr. Lance Reppert will welcome all contributions of material for the quarterlies for the up coming year.

We leave our offices with mixed emotions, but will still work as we are able on the various committees that are needed to keep our society growing. Working on "The Pioneer" has not only been a challenge and exciting, but has been an enjoyable experience. For the future we see an even bigger and better publication under the direction of Mr. Reppert.

To all the newly elected officers that take office in July we give you our very best wishes and God Bless you all!

THE END

JAYHAWKERS - BUSHWACKERS & SKELETONS
(My ancestors in Kansas & Missouri)

Contributed by: Mr. Robert A. Goodpasture
Star Route; Georgetown, California 95634

PREFACE

This bit of history is for both Jayhawkers and Bushwackers. It gives what I have found concerning my ancestors on each side of the Kansas - Missouri border during and preceding the Civil War; this to the end that others may supply added information that would make this history even more interesting and complete.

JAYHAWKERS

My great grandfather, Hamilton Goodpasture and his family moved from Morgan County, Ill. to Linn County, Kansas, probably over the Lane Trail some time around 1856/7. His son-in-law, John Ford who married his eldest daughter on 7 May 1854 in Ill., may have accompanied them; at least Elizabeth did. John Ford soon passed out of the picture, either unaccidently or just disappeared, probably along the way. Their only child died at age 2.

Elizabeth's grand daughter from a later marriage, who grew up close to her grandmother, informed me that John Ford was a bigmist and requested me to remove his name from the family history. There should be a story here abouts.

Elizabeth married (2) Samuel Martin Fancher on 3 March 1859 in Linn Co., Kansas. The marriage was witnessed by her older brothers Andrew J. and William H. Goodpasture.

Hamilton and family, except for Elizabeth, appear in the 1860 Census of Scott Twp., Linn Co., P. O. Brooklynn on 29 June. Samuel & Elizabeth were in Paris Twp., per same census, on 7 Aug. 1860.

Hamilton and his two eldest sons, Andrew and William, may have served in one of the militia units (so called) commanded by James Lane and/or James Montgomery. These units were border marauders that raided into Missouri to plunder and carry off slaves.

In late 1860 or early 1861 the Goodpasture family moved to Lucas Co., Iowa. The Fancher family either accompanied them or followed soon after. In Sep't. 1861 Andrew and William enlisted in Co. "C" 13 Iowa Infantry at Chariton, Ia.; Andrew as Pvt. and William as Corpl., Veteran. William's previous service must have been in the Linn Co. Militia.

In July 1862 Hamilton's third son Abraham, and Samuel Fancher enlisted at Chariton, Ia. in Co. "K" 34th Iowa Infantry. Abraham, my grandfather, survived the war but Samuel died in the service.

Hamilton apparently did not accompany his wife and children to Iowa. If he did he returned to Kansas for he appeared at Fort Scott in 1863 where he enlisted in Co. "L" 6th Kansas Cavalry. He furnished his own horse and horse equipment.

This writer has been unable to find anything concerning Hamilton's activities during the period 1858-62. Why did he remain in Kansas? Was he detained or engaged in Jayhawker activities? He was given a medical discharge on 8 June 1865 at DeVall's Bluff, Ark. He joined his family in Iowa and in 1869-70 moved to Oregon by wagon. The party no doubt consisted of Hamilton, wife Eleanor, son James and daughter Martha.

Hamilton never applied for a pension on the basis of his own service but did file on the basis of the service of his son William. (William died of wounds received before Atlanta on 28 July 1864.) This appears strange. Hamilton's service was honorable and he was discharged as a Corporal.

BUSHWACKERS

The writer was born in Iowa but grew up near Nevada, Vernon County, Missouri, almost opposite Linn Co., Kansas. The writer's mother was born in Vernon County. She was a daughter of Alfred and Claudia (Osborne) Tribble. Alfred passed away in 1907, four years before the writer was born. I do remember my grandmother Claudia. She was a Rebel born in N. C. but grew up in Cedar Co., Missouri. She hated those Jayhawkers from Kansas and used to talk about the terrible things they did in Missouri. As a young girl she once drove a team and wagon when the family moved eastward because of Jayhawker raids. Of course, as a child I paid little attention.

Claudia was a daughter of Peter and Hannah (Andrew) Osborn(e). Peter and Hannah moved from N. C. to Missouri before 1850 and after 28 Oct. 1844 the date of Claudia's birth. Hannah died sometime during the same period.

Peter Osborn age 28, and daughters Sarah 8 and C. B. 5 appear in the household of Isaac Solsberry, Fristo Twp., Benton Co. in the 1850 (4 Sept.) Census. Peter married (2) Louisa Sally? shortly there after (3 Oct. 1850?). They took up land in Lynn Twp., Cedar County in 1857 where they appear twice (31 July & 14 Aug) in the 1860 Census. This move may have been due to Jayhawker raids. The writer has been unable to find additional data on Peter in Missouri.

Claudia married Alfred Tribble on 31 Oct. 1867 at Sedalia, Pettis Co., Mo. This indicates an eastward move of the Osborn family during the war. Alfred and Claudia moved to Vernon Co., Mo. where all of their children were born.

The War was over but the Rebels were getting even with them "Yankees". When someone asked Robert E. Lee why he let his daughter marry a Yankee he replied: "That's the only way I can get even with them now."

Peter Osborn probably had the same idea. Alfred Tribble was a Union soldier during the War. Alfred and Claudia's marriage was rather turbulent. Yes they reared a family but Alfred took to drink to ease the Rebel psychological warfare and as a result died rather early.

Can you Jayhawkers and Bushwackers add anything???

"C'EST LE MARAIS DES CYGNES"

THE STORY OF THE NAMING OF THE RIVER.

The beautiful story of the naming of the river that meanders through eastern Kansas to become the Osage in Missouri, has been a part of the folk lore of this area for many decades.

LaCygne (The Swan) took its name from the river that brushes its western edge. The Marais des Cygnes (Marsh of the Swans) gained nation-wide attention following the Marais des Cygnes massacre during the border troubles preceding the Civil War. John Greenleaf Whittier's poem, "Le Marais du Cygne" described the massacre, which stunned the country at the time, in nine verses of Whittier poetic eloquence, two verses of which read:

A blush as of roses
Where roses never grew!
Great drops on the bunch-grass,
But not of the dew!
A taint in the sweet air,
For wild bees to shun!
A stain that will never
Bleach out in the sun!

From the hearths of their cabins,
The fields of their corn,
Unarmed and unweaponed,
The victims were torn,—
By the whirlwind of murder,
Swooped up and swept on
To the low, reedy fen-lands—
The Marsh of the Swan

Hamilton's border ruffians set the scene for the poem when they gathered up 11 men from their homes and fields, lined them up in a ravine and fired point blank at close range.

A prettier story comes from the naming of the river. This story is recorded in "Linn County, Kansas--A History." The author was W. A. Mitchell, a son of Barton Warren Mitchell, who found the famous lost orders which precipitated the battle of Antietam. He tells of hearing the story from John Roubidoux, chief of the Miami Indian tribe, as follows:

In 1871, when the writer was ten years old this story of the naming of the river was heard from an authoritative source. In company with Johnnie Geboe and Will Peery, two Miami Indian boys of my own age, we were in the big forest about two miles south of La Cygne. We were admiring a beautiful thing of nature, a big forest tree literally covered by a wild hop vine flower. It was a marvelously beautiful sight and as we were discussing it in boy fashion there came to us out of the forest a tall fine looking man. He was John Roubidoux, the head chief of the Miami Tribe which had previously owned all of what is now Lincoln township and also Sugar Creek township over the line in Miami county as a reservation. Roubidoux was a full-blood Indian and a very handsome man. He had been highly educated and nearly always dressed in a tailor-made suit of black broad-cloth. He was a preacher in the Baptist faith and very sociable and clever in conversation. As conversation lagged Johnnie Geboe said to him, "Tell Billie about the naming of the river," and he sat down with us and told this story with far more charm than I could give it in repetition: "There has always been a curious inquiry into the origin of the name of our river. It is an Indian legend based in part on a pathetic chapter in American history. The story is authoritatively given as follows: In 1756 the British carried away bodily the French people in the settlement of Grand Pre in Arcadia, a colony since peopled by English and called Nova Scotia, a tragedy of such great pathos and beauty that it was used by Longfellow as the theme of his poem "Evangeline", the heroine being a real character in life who came into the western country in search of her lover, Gabriel Lajeunesse, who with others of the Acadian village had been carried to the shores of Louisiana on the Gulf coast. She, bewildered and wondering, set out through the Canadian wilderness, past Quebec, on to Pierre Marquette and down the lakes and the Illinois river to the Mississippi, up the Missouri to the Osage.

"It is not so recorded but it is entirely presumable that Evangeline was accompanied by men of her own nationality in this prolonged adventure. In seeking information from the native Indians as they proceeded up the Osage river there was always the alluring story of a great "summer village" at the head water of that stream and which they finally found at what is now the lake country at the mouth of Big Sugar creek. This country had long been French territory and by the elders of the tribe familiar with French agents and their language, they were made welcome. A tepee was set aside for Evangeline and she became intimately associated with the women of the tribe. Her story became their own romance and they eagerly sought information for her from the "runners" who were constantly passing through from one tribe to another, even locating the spot on the Gulf coast where the unhappy Acadians had been turned loose in a wilderness and eventually were mourned as a 'lost people'. One day, during the routine of village work, Evangeline saw several young boys and girls approach Sona the Wise Mother of the tribe and in excited whisperings were telling of some unusual event.

"They have seen Coman and Osa," said the Wise Mother.

"Evangeline sensed a tribal romance and to the Wise Mother she said, 'Tell me about it.'

" 'It is' said the Wise Mother, 'a long story of long ago. It estranged two big tribes who have never since been friendly. It is the story of a young war chief of the greatest prairie tribe and a beautiful young princess of our people. Coman was the young chieftain and he celebrated the close of a great buffalo hunt by appearing at our village with twenty of his young and handsome braves, all dressed in feather bonnets and beaded finery and mounted on powerful horses. They carried ceremonial banners, signifying peace and joy. Their visit was a great event, all our young people, especially the maidens, dressing in their finest to do honor to their proud guests. Osa, our princess, granddaughter of White Hair, was the comeliest among the maidens, young and pretty and arrayed in the finest new buckskin decorated elaborately in bead designs designating her royal station in the tribe.

" 'Coman was entranced by her. He sought her constantly. Osa manifested her admiration and attachment for him. They made it a long and merry season and when the frost came and the visitors must return to their prairie tribe, the parting was not a happy one, as White Hair refused to give Osa to the great prairie chief. Osa rebelled and threatened to follow him. The winter was a bad one and our young people hard to manage after their great festival with the visiting braves. But when the flood waters were running out, and there were flowers and green leaves everywhere, on a bright May morning there appeared on that bank across the river twenty horsemen in war bonnets and carrying beautiful ceremonial banners. At their head was Coman dressed in his proudest trappings. He led a beautiful horse without a rider, and a second glance showed it was to carry a woman. Coman gave that beautiful and graceful salutation known as the "peace sign" and dismounting, got into one of the canoes to cross over to us. With some difficulty he got across, but showed that he was better as a horseman than as a boatman.

"Osa was radiant as she met him. Her luggage was brought and Coman insisted they go.

"Coman was exultant in his triumph and addressing White Hair, he said:

" 'Coman is a great chief of a great people. We have the Land of the Sky. We have the great high mountains where Manitou makes his home and mixes medicine for all his people. The eye never sees the end of our domain. Our warriors vanquish all opponents. Our lodges are filled with a great and happy people who own the herds of buffalo on the plains, which give us both meat and clothing. Our war horses are numberless. When the Comanches put on their war bonnets it is a sight to thrill the world. Our people offer a royal welcome to Osa as the bride of Coman.'

"But White Hair was not convinced and said:

" 'It is not wise it should be so. Osa is a daughter of the forest. Her home is in a land of plenty. The land produces corn and melons, and as the seasons go there are berries, persimmons, pawpaws, grapes and plums. The whole tribe could live on the pecans, walnuts and hickory nuts the forests give to us. The great trees shelter us from the storms and the heat of summer. They furnish fuel for our fires in winter. There are buffalo and deer and bear, and fish in the waters. The Osages are rich and happy and grow wise in their contentment.

" 'Why should Osa go to your country where you see far and see nothing? It is a deceptive country which smiles in the spring time and then burns up the grass and leaves the earth bare. It frowns in the winter and covers the earth with snow. It has no trees. It has no water. The buffalo and deer desert it.

" 'Your people are cruel and blood-thirsty because of the cruel country you live in. Osa should not go to live among you. The Great Spirit has placed this river between us and the sullen roar of its flood waters voice his anger.'

"Osa had an expression of dismay as she witnessed the dignified refusal of her grandfather, but stepping into the canoe she showed her decision to go with her chosen man. Coman turned the canoe into the stream and the waiting people on each side were thrilled with the beauty of the scene and its significance. With strong confident stroke Coman forced the canoe into the flood when some angry thing below seized the boat and drew it downward out of sight. In a flash the two lovers disappeared. No trace was ever seen of them or their boat. As the horrified people looked upon the scene, a miracle happened. At the place where the lovers disappeared there was seen on the water two great white swans which swam away together through peaceful waters under a canopy of vines and wild rice.

"These swans were seen today by the children. They always return here. Their story is the great epic poem of the Osages."

The assemblage of young people, who always listened to this story when told by the Wise Mother arose and beckoned them to follow, going to the great cliff at the top of Timbered Mound, from which Evangeline, as she looked over the shimmering waters of lakes and river and the green valley, spread her arms as though to embrace them and said:

"C'est le marais des cygnes."

It is the marsh of the swans.

A COMPLETE FIZZLE

The Border Ruffian election held on Monday, 15th inst., to elect delegates to form a nigger-driving constitution, was a ridiculous farce - absolutely a most laughable affair. The poor fellows, aggrieved at the sorry prospect of being prevented from playing their old favorite games at the polls, were indifferent about the result, and in their strongest precincts, it is presumed that but a small portion of their actual strength was ascertained - so desponding were they on knowing the fact of their case being a hopeless one. About 230 votes were polled at Leavenworth. At Tecumseh where it is supposed the majority of its inhabitants are pro-slavery, but three votes were polled. No polls were opened at Lawrence. 30 votes were polled at St. Bernard, Franklin Co., where, we regret to say, a few Free State men participated. We are happy to state that in no precinct, with the exception of the latter one, did the Free State men take part. The Ruffians had the entire field to themselves.

A HISTORY OF THE RICHLAND CEMETERY

by
Lewis Howell and Lena G. Jones

Journal-World, Lawrence, Kansas -

CHAPTER I Richland Cemetery

The Richland Cemetery is located south of Lawrence and about one and a half miles north of what is now known as Pleasant Grove on the west side of highway 59 on the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 35, township 13, range 19.

Several deaths occurred in the community before there was a cemetery. A son of Peter Harmon was buried in the Pioneer cemetery west of Lawrence. It was afterwards found that he was interred on the wrong lot, so the body had to be moved. Lewis Howell had a son and a daughter buried on the top of the hill south of his house, overlooking the beautiful valley. The wife and several children of William Meairs were buried on his home place.

Realizing the need of a burial ground, William Meairs, Oliver E. Clark, Peter Harmon, Lewis Howell and Morgan Jones met at the home of Peter Harmon February 10, 1874, and founded the Richland Cemetery association. James Bryson, William Meairs and Oliver E. Clark were appointed trustees and Williams Meairs chosen as clerk.

The site was selected on the Peter Harmon farm. The east slope overlooking the beautiful valley, made it a very desirable location and, for $8, the land was deeded by Peter Harmon and wife to the Richland Cemetery association. The deed was recorded January 19, 1876.

The cemetery was laid out in eight blocks with five lots to each block. The lots on the south side were evidently considered the most desirable; since those receiving the first five numbers in the drawing for lots, chose the ones on the south, the first choice being the one in the southwest corner.

The cemetery was named the Richland cemetery because the land in that location was especially rich. The valley to the east was especially fertile and the creek, running about midway thru the valley, was often called Richland creek.

On May 17, 1874, Morgan Jones was elected trustee and Peter Harmon chosen as sexton. On January 20, 1876, Morgan Jones was elected chairman and Oliver E. Clark, treasurer. All these men, Morgan Jones, trustee and chairman; William Meairs, trustee and secretary; Oliver E. Clark, trustee and treasurer, and Peter Harmon, sexton, continued in office until the death of William Meairs in 1880, when Lewis Howell was elected to succeed him. After serving Collins Holloway and Catharine Blackburn Kennedy were married in Hammersville, O., on February 5, 1852. In the fall of 1853 they went to Schuyler county, Illinois, where they lived until May 2, 1855, when they started for Kansas, arriving June 3, 1855. In the spring of 1855, he moved his family from Cincinnati to the farm which he had preempted, located six-miles southwest of Lawrence, the description being the $W\frac{1}{2}$ of $NE\frac{1}{4}$, section 35, township 13, range 19 and the $E\frac{1}{2}$ of $NW\frac{1}{4}$, section 35, township 13, range 19.

Lewis Howell was a cabinet maker and carpenter. At the time he learned his trade, frames of windows, door moldings and jambs were made by hand. Members of the Howell family are giving his tools, which they still have, to the Historical society.

Lewis Howell built many of the early buildings of Lawrence and surrounding country, some of which are still standing. He also worked on the construction of all the Eldridge Houses except the present one, building the walnut stairways with these tools.

He told of the exciting times they had about Lawrence in the early days, but the most terrifying experience occurred the morning of Quantrill's raid. Mr. Howell was boarding at the Savage home, 1600 block, Tennessee street. When shooting was heard, he went out to see what was going on. He hadn't gone far when about a dozen men on horses rode up to him, drew their guns on him and demanded his money. He started to reach for his money, but they rode off, saying, "He is a damn foreigner, let him go." Mr. Howell, a Welshman, usually spoke good English, but when he was excited, he spoke brokenly. This fact saved his life.

Both landed in New York, December 14, 1833. Married November 9, 1836, in Richland county, Ohio.

Robert Sutters, October 5, 1903, age 64 years.

Sarah L., wife of Robert Sutters, June 24, 1875, age 24 years.

Maggie F. Sutters, daughter of Robert and Sarah L. Sutters, October 10, 1873, age six weeks.

Sarah L. Sutters, daughter of Robert and Sarah L. Sutters, August 1, 1875, age 3 months.

Eliza J. Boyd, April 11, 1896, age 66 years.

Kennedy Sutters, December 25, 1878, age 70 years.

Margaret, wife of Kennedy Sutters, October 2, 1878, age 78 years.

Robert Sutters came to Lawrence from Philadelphia in the spring of 1864 and worked in the brick plant of Thomas McFarland.

In 1868, Kennedy Sutters and wife, Margaret, parents of Robert Sutters and their son, John K., and their daughter, Martha, came from Philadelphia to Kansas. In July of the same year, another daughter, Eliza J. Sutters Boyd, and her five children came to Lawrence.

In 1868, John K. and Robert M. Sutters bought 160 acres of land which had been homesteaded by Thomas J. Evans. It was located one half mile north of what is now known as Pleasant Grove and was the NW $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 2, township 14, range 19. The family lived on this farm for two or more years. John K. and Robert M. Sutters then started a brick plant west of the Thomas McFarland brick yard. They continued in this business until 1874 when they sold their brick plant to Thomas McFarland and Robert M. Sutters and the family returned to the farm.

In the meantime, Robert M. Sutters had married Sarah Hale. Later, after selling his interest in the farm to his brother, John K. Sutters, he bought the S $\frac{1}{2}$ of the NE $\frac{1}{4}$ of section 33, township 13, range 19, and lived there until his death.

The children of Margaret and Kennedy Sutters were: John K., Margaret Sutters Neely, Robert M., Martha Sutters Wilson and Eliza J. Sutters Boyd.

THE END

The following article was taken from a newspaper entitled and dated as follows: Freemans Champion - Volume 1 - Number 1 - Prairie City, Kansas, Thursday, June 25, 1857 - Terms $2 per annum.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THIS, LADIES?

The better sex are a scarce commodity in this community. We have a few handsome, intelligent and highly-accomplished young ladies as any city can boast of, but "declarations of intentions" have been "filed" on the most of them, with fair prospects of being "pre-empted," and no hopes of "jumping." Considering this state of things, the proprietors of Prairie City, with the view of supplying the wants of our young men, offer as an inducement for young ladies in the States to emigrate and settle among us, a city lot to each and every one, so soon as they consent to become a "squatter's claim." What more inducements can you desire ladies? Let us know, and you shall be satisfied.

The following Experiences and Facts about Survivors of the raid are taken from the Magazine LAWRENCE - TODAY AND YESTERDAY, Published by THE LAWRENCE DAILY JOURNAL WORLD, December 23, 1913. We wish to Thank Mr. W. Keith Kelley for the loan of this fine magazine so that we may copy some of the articles.

MRS. B. BRECHTELSBAUER, Lawrence, Kansas - Was born in Bavaria Germany, and came to America on her wedding day. She is a survivor of the Quantrell raid, her husband being shot down before her eyes. Her five small children were with her at the time at the old Peter Zimmerman home in the 800 block on Connecticut Street. Mrs. Brechtelsbauer came to Lawrence in March, 1861, and for the past forty eight years has lived at 720 Massachusetts Street. She has never remarried. Three of her children are living, Mrs. Ella Wieman, of this city; Mrs. Herman Parker, of St. Louis, Missouri, and Mrs. Park Godwin, of Chicago.

A Chicagoan, W. H. SIMPSON, now General Advertising Agent of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway System, wrote: "When Quantrell raided Lawrence I was five and one half years young. My father, Henry M. Simpson, then lived in West Lawrence. Back of our house was a large field of corn, growing, as Kansas corn is in the habit of doing, lustily tall and thick. That field, with its "walls of corn," saved our lives. I well remember being hurriedly dragged into the maze of maize just as the rebels came up the front steps looking for abolitionists. The day was hot. It dawned that way. We had no water, no breakfast, and nothing to satisfy hunger except ears of half-green corn. The necessity for keeping quiet was impressed on my mind; but probably I was too badly scared to make a noise, anyway. The flames from our burning house scarcely had died down when we came out of our hiding place and were taken care of by kind neighbors - glad just to be alive."

THOS. F. KELEHER, Albuquerque, N. M. - Was fifteen years of age and employed at the Eldridge House as waiter, bell-boy and useful man. He says: "The morning of August 21, 1863, I was up early, about five a.m., as Bishop Meighs, of the Roman Catholic Church, was going to give confirmation that day. I had prepared for confirmation. They came to the hotel front entrance around five a.m. Someone called out very loud three times, hello. The night clerk, Mr. Austin, grabbed the gong and rang it through the halls of the hotel to arouse sleeping guests. Eugene Berry (Smithy) and myself ran through the dining room to get out of the house. The back door was locked. We returned to the office and got out at the back door in rear of office. My sister, Kate E. Keleher, is one of the survivors, but she lives in Albuquerque now.

MISS HANNAH P. OLIVER, Lawrence, Kans. - Tells interestingly of some facts about Mr. and Mrs. Griswold who had returned the evening before from a visit East. Miss Oliver states: "Mrs. Griswold, with her two children, had gone in April to visit relatives in St. Charles, Minn. Dr. Griswold had gone east to bring them home. They found time to visit his mother. There friends pressed him to stay long enough for them to hold a reunion in his honor. He declined. It seems almost that they were fated in no way to escape the massacre; they missed their train at Hannibal, and at Leavenworth found the stage already gone. They hired a carriage and overtook it, reaching Lawrence at five o'clock on the afternoon of August 20, 1863. Their bed-room was on the ground floor and early next morning they heard Mr. Trask calling to men from the upper piazza, saying: "You want to go up town and take measures for the safety of the city." Even then they did not imagine that those to whom he was speaking were guerillas. They called for Dr. Griswold and looking from her window, Mrs. Griswold saw what they were. The mounted outlaws asked them to go with them to the Eldridge House, promising safety. The four men left the house together and as they stepped through the gate, they were ordered to go in single file; then the rebels fired upon them. The men scattered, but were shot while running and fell. Dr. Griswold died almost instantly. Mr. Trask as instantly killed. Mr. Thorp died from his wounds the next day. Mr. Baker, of Kansas City, received the second shot through his lungs, which however did not prove fatal.

MAT SHAW, Kansas City, Mo. _ Was a live young contractor in Lawrence as early as '58, when he came to the city. He moved his refrigerator factory to St. Louis in 1872, but now makes his home in Kansas City. In 1858 Mr. Shaw built the three story brick building now owned and occupied by Jacob House & Son. Here are his words: "My carpenter shop and the First M. E. Church that were near each other, escaped the fire. The church was used as a morgue. I put men to work, making rough coffins and used 2,500 feet of walnut lumber and fifty pounds of nails that I happened to have at the shop. The next day I put men to work on a building I had under way on Massachusetts Street, opposite where now the Journal-World is, thinking to check a stampede of people leaving town. My old memorandum book tells me there were 130 men killed and 150 houses burned."

EDWARD P. FARREN, 34 Whalley Ave., New Haven, Conn. _ "Our family at the time of the raid were living in the Finley House which was on the east side of Massachusetts Street, directly back of the old City Hotel (since called "The Duffee House"). This was a short distance from the river bank, and kept by a Mr. Stone. For two or three weeks previous to the raid they had been recruiting a company of sharpshooters in Lawrence and they were camped in North Lawrence by the old Baldwin Mill (since Darlings I think). It seems that Quantrell had formerly taught school in Lawrence and boarded with the Stone's, and while there he had typhoid fever. They had taken care of and been very good to him, so that morning he said that they should be saved and all in their house and they took all of their prisoners there, so mother and we children went there; father hiding in some very tall weeds back of the house. I was with my mother and a number of others in the dining room when Lydia Stone, daughter of the proprietor, ran dodging through the crowd and went upstairs. They had taken her diamond ring early that morning and she had gone to Quantrell and he had made them give it back. They told her they would get even with her, so had come back for it. When they could not find her they said: 'Every d___ one of you come out here,' and after they had gotten us out they lined us all up on the veranda - men, women and children, - and starting at one end said to the man: 'Where are you from?' He replied "Ohio," and they asked "What part of Ohio?" to which question he again replied 'The southern part.' They shot him. The same was asked of the next man. He said 'From the same place, but for God's sake don't shoot.' They shot him. The next man was one-armed Brown, whom all the old settlers knew. He held up the stump of his arm to show that he was a cripple, but he shared the fate of the other two. The next man to Brown was also shot and his blood spurted all over the lady who stood next to mother and me. Just then Mr. Stone came out of the house and walked up close to the men saying: 'Look here, I have been guaranteed protection and safety for myself and all in my house and I want this stopped.' They shot him. He turned around, went back into the house and died in a short time. Then we all made a break, jumped off the veranda and ran down the hill toward the ferry."

DELLA JONES PATTON, 1524 Tyler Street, Topeka, Kansas. "My father was David Jones, a mason by trade and a building contractor. We lived on Kentucky Street, two blocks south of Central School. My mother with us four children went out to see Rev. Brown's at the big ravine west of town. I can now see the mass of people there. I was nine years old at that time. Jim Lane one of them and Dear Mrs. Brown made all her flour into biscuits to help feed those at the house. My father stayed at our house, and saved several houses from burning in that neighborhood. Just before the yell was given for the ruffians to leave, Rev. Fisher's house was one he saved from total destruction, the front having burned out before he got there. My father dragged the preacher from the cellar, where Mrs. Fisher had tumbled him to save his life. Our house was not molested."

HISTORY OF LAWRENCE, KANSAS FROM THE FIRST SETTLEMENT TO THE CLOSE OF THE REBELLION, By: Richard Cordley.

The Douglas County Genealogical Society announces an authentic reproduction of the original 1895 edition of this fine work, long out of print. This is the most complete history ever written of Lawrence for the years 1854-1865. The author came to Kansas in 1857 and was pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church during the turbulent years recorded in this book. The focus of his History is naturally the dramatic conflict between pro- and anti-slavery factions in the years before 1861, but there is also good information on the development of the town and its economy and cultural life. His detailed, eye-witness account of Quantrell's Raid in 1863, running more than 60 pages, is an especially valuable feature. The book contains 269 pages of text, 30 pages of illustrations. An index has been added, which was not in the original. Price is $12.50. Kansas residents please add 3 1/2% sales tax. Order from: The Douglas County Genealogical Society; P. O. Box 3664; Lawrence, Kansas 66044.

The Douglas County Genealogical Society is pleased to be the sponsor of this workshop, to be conducted by staff members from EVERTON PUBLISHERS of Logan, Utah, a firm well-known for its books, forms, and the magazine The Genealogical Helper. The Theme of the workshop is "Family Tree Climbing Can Be Fun". It will be a comprehensive introduction to genealogy for the beginner: how to get started, what records to search, etc. These workshops are being conducted all over the nation and are exciting interest everywhere they are offered.

The charge for the workshop is $6.00. Participants will receive at the door an information packet of sample forms and genealogical data sheets published by Everton.

There will be a break from noon to 2 p.m. for lunch. For those who desire it, the Genealogical Society will serve a light luncheon buffet at a charge of $1.75 per person.
